Spooky's Jump Scare Mansion is a scary puzzle maze where you'll have to use your head to survive. You will be given a set of items and room keys that will be required to navigate the rooms with ghosts and surprises. You will have to rely on your instinct and your rationality to know where to go and what to do in order to get out of a room. Full version of the game has more than 1000 rooms and 200 items, increasing the number of options you have to escape. Follow on Facebook:

If you liked the first two games, then Tropico 4 is a must-have. Now you can live out a reality show of the life of a dictator in Tropico 4. In Tropico 4 your main goal is to run a country, build a profitable business empire and bring your people comfort. The game makes everyday life a little easier with a sound and action based game engine. An integrated help system makes the game easier to play, while the wealth of features helps you make an even bigger success of your presidency.

Tropico 4: The Big Voodoo Shuffle starts when your voodoo priest sends you a letter and asks for his last rites. Poor healthcare is responsible for the death of the last remaining voodoo priest on Tropico. A new threat rises when the evil sorceress Vanya arrives from Soviet Russia to curse El Presidente and his regime. Study the mystical ways of voodoo and use them to your benefit with the new Voodoo Manor tourist attraction, impress your people by wearing a fancy Witch Doctor costume combined with a new voodoo trait enabling your people to survive even with the poorest of healthcare.

Key Features:

- New building: Voodoo Manor (a luxury tourist attraction)
- New trait: Witch Doctor (Tropicans need less healthcare)
- New outfit: Witch Doctor
- New mission: The Big Voodoo Shuffle - Create an El Presidente voodoo doll to contain the curse!

and Sail Article Archive After several months without posting, at this website I decided it is time to move on to new, fresh ideas. So I have decided to start a new, updated thread dedicated to kite and sail articles. Past topics that have made it into this new thread include extremely popular articles like "How to avoid a flat-spot" or "How to shorten your riding time". If you have a favorite kite and sail article please feel free to submit it and have everyone read it as a pleasure and a learning tool. Do you have a kite and sail article request? Please feel free to mention it below, as many people reading the forum will have the same question. Laptops with more than 7 years old, for the most part, fall behind in the performance stakes compared with more recent, faster, lighter laptops. They also tend to emit a lot of heat. Heat and poor cooling techniques are a great danger to electrical components and are a main cause of laptop failure, whether you're looking to do a DIY repair or simply have a failed laptop. If you decide to do a DIY repair, don't take any shortcuts in practice, because in the end, usually you'll be short of time, things aren't really going to want to work properly, and eventually the damage will be too great to really repair. This means you should be monitoring the temperature of all the heat producing components to make sure none of them overheat. You should be aware of multiple overheating issues to avoid taking the risk of damaging anything, even a part so small that your untrained eye can't find it. The laptop thermometer mounted as a plug in is the best route to take here. Most are small enough to put on a USB port. If possible, get a thermometer that covers the full range of operating temperatures. It should stick with you for many use cases. If it's an OEM model, who knows. While they're not always verified to work, reviews for the analog hardware types like iNTEK's iQEPI HP-VN600 Thermometer achieve amazing results for laptops. The digital HP-VN300 model from RIMAX may look a bit less reliable but is generally better at recording temperatures on laptops. The MIO-VE25 with built in 1/4" to 3/8" (OD) sensors should be a great
